

BLUE TIT

(Cyanistes caeruleus)

SIZE:
length 11 cm
wingspan 18 cm
One of the smallest
species of tits

WHERE TO SEE THEM:
shrubs

Prominent blue
head

Small beak used as a hammer to open seeds, or as tweezers to catch small insects

They have a call for every occasion, both to signal food and intruders in their territory

Capable of imitating a hissing sound like that of a snake

Every day it eats a quantity of food almost equal to its weight: caterpillars, chrysalises, aphids, and spiders in summer, while in other seasons it also feeds on seeds, fruits, and berries

In winter, it also easily feeds on feeders
